1. Jobs at IIED:

Director of Communications

IIED is looking for an experience and dynamic Director of Communications. The post is based in London but we want someone who thinks internationally. Are you an innovative communicator? Can you make IIED's take on sustainable development reach the parts we haven't yet reached? Then maybe this is the job for you.

2. EarthwireUK: A new UK environment and sustainable development news portal from IIED and UNEP GRID Arendal

Every working day a team from IIED reviews national, regional and local media sources for environment and sustainable development-related news stories. Relevant stories are included in EarthwireUK where they can be viewed by country, topic, or time period. A search engine allows users to search for issues and keywords in the archive. Press releases and news from research organisations, the public sector, and environmental organisations are included as well.

Forestry can be a real force for better livelihoods and good governance. But a pattern of forest problems common to many countries – including loss of natural forests, inequitable access, lack of information and resources and ossified institutions – presents real progress. Policy is at the root of most of most of the problems. Based on worldwide research, this book is the most authoritative study to date of policy processes that affect forests. It provides a thorough analysis of the issues, options and factors that determine different outcomes. Bolstered by a major annex containing tools and tactics, the book offers clear and practical advice on how to formulate, manage and implement policies appropriate to different contexts. These are policies that result in real improvements in the governance, use and economic benefits that can flow from forest to those who depend upon them.

' The essential learning accessory for forest policy students and practioners.' Prof. Peter Kanowski, Australia National University

' Guides readers to start transforming their own policy and institutional environment.' Jag Maini, Coordinator and Head of the Secretariat to the UN Forum on Forests.

The International Institute for Environment and Development (IIED) is an independent, non-profit research institute working in the field of sustainable development. IIED aims to provide expertise and leadership in researching and achieving sustainable development at local, national, regional, and global levels. In alliance with others we seek to help shape a future that ends global poverty and delivers and sustains efficient and equitable management of the world's natural resources.
