

65

participatory learning and action

Biodiversity and culture: exploring community protocols, rights and consent

participatory learning and action

Issue 65: Biodiversity and culture: exploring community protocols, rights and consent

Guest editors: Krystyna Swiderska (IIED), Kanchi Kohli (Kalpavriksh, India), Harry Jonas and Holly Shrumm (Natural Justice), Wim Hiemstra, (COMPAS, Netherlands), Maria Julia Oliva (Union for Ethical BioTrade)

Published by the International Institute for Environment and Development (IIED), 2012

Price: USD $32.00 Order No. 14618IIED ISBN: 978-1-84369-851-7

Download free online at <http://pubs.iied.org/14618IIED.html>

This special issue of Participatory Learning and Action explores two important participatory tools that indigenous peoples and local communities can use to help defend their customary rights to biocultural heritage, natural resources and land:

- Community protocols – or charters of rules and responsibilities – in which communities set out their customary rights to natural resources and land, as recognised in customary, national and international laws; and
- Free, prior informed consent (FPIC) processes, in which communities decide whether or not to allow projects affecting their land or resources to go ahead, and on what terms.

The issue reviews the experiences of communities in Asia, Latin America and Africa in developing and using these tools in a range of contexts, including: developing mechanisms for access and benefit-sharing (ABS) for genetic resources and traditional knowledge; confronting threats from mining and protected areas; and improving forestry partnerships. It also looks at some government experiences of establishing institutional processes for FPIC and benefit-sharing. It identifies practical lessons and guidance based on these experiences.

It aims to strengthen the capacity of a range of actors (eg. local organisations, practitioners, NGOs, donors and governments) to support these rights-based tools effectively in practice, and to highlight the need for bottom-up processes designed by communities, rather than pre-defined processes and procedures imposed from outside.

This issue also aims to provide guidance for those implementing the Nagoya Protocol and other natural resource and development practitioners, and to raise awareness of the importance of community designed and controlled participatory processes.

NATURAL JUSTICE

- Participatory Learning and Action (PLA) publishes articles on participatory approaches and methods aimed at practitioners, researchers, academics and activists. All articles are peer-reviewed by an international editorial board. PLA is published twice a year and is free of charge to readers in the global South. For more information, including how to subscribe, contact: The Editors, Participatory Learning and Action, IIED, 80-86 Gray's Inn Road, London WC1X 8NH, UK. Email: pla.notes@iied.org; Tel: +44 20 3463 7399; Fax: +44 20 3514 9055; Website: www.planotes.org

We are grateful to the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (Sida), the UK Department for International Development (DfID) and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Denmark (Danida) for their financial support. We would also like to thank the GIZ-implemented multi-donor ABS Capacity Development Initiative for providing additional co-funding for this special issue.